

Job Well Done

The last major hurdle standing in the way of bringing a nationally known manufacturing plant to Monroe County was cleared Monday when the Poccano Mountains Chamber of Commerce voted to borrow $5,500 to help finance extension of water lines to the plant site.

The $5,500 represents the difference between the $14,500 cost for installing the lines and the $9,000 which two local industries contributed toward the project.

Plans and specifications for a $750,000 building to house the new plant have been prepared and turned over to the manufacturer. Awarding of construction contracts was held up temporarily pending the receipt of local assurances that a 10-inch water line would be extended to the plant site.

The Chamber of Commerce, whose industrial committee has worked long and hard to attract new industries to this area, acted wisely when it assumed the responsibility for guaranteeing a water supply adequate to meet the industry's needs.

In moving to expedite the project, the Chamber once again demonstrated its eagerness to bolster the community's industrial foundation and to build a greater framework in every way possible.

It is pursuing a long-range program intended to enlarge upon the diversification of industry we now have. Its job is not an easy one, for the committee must give freely of their time during the period of negotiation with any and all industrial prospects.

The community should be thankful it has men such as those in the Chamber of Commerce who are not only willing but anxious to contribute their time, often at a personal sacrifice, in order to open up new job opportunities. We salute them for their efforts.

Good Evening Ladies!

Take Pride In Mate's Job

By Ken Duval

Ladies, are you proud of your husband's profession or occupation? Do you swell up like a pouter pigeon when someone asks you, "What does your husband do for a living?" Well, you should be and no matter what a husband does, a wife should be proud and always make it clear to inquirers that her husband is the best in the business.

I'm passing this along to a Camden, N.J., lady, a highly intelligent person who is forever seeking to improve her mind and who, in this pursuit, can hardly wait for this column to appear. Her husband, she says, is six feet, four inches tall, built like a gorilla and somewhat resembles one, and makes his living designing pants and bras.

It is very embarrassing to her, she writes, to have to tell people about this, especially if her husband is in sight and the questioner can get a good look at him. Their first impression, she feels, is that he plays defensive tackle for a professional football team. Then she has to tell them the awful truth.

Madam, designing pants and bras is a skilled vocation. It is obvious that your husband has brains. It is quite probable that he loves his work. You can, if you try, tell about it in such a manner that you build him up and make him sound like one of the world's most useful citizens and workers. After all, there are other wives who have the same problem, which I'm sure they meet with intelligence.

Rear End Painters

Take, for example, the wives of a small group of men attached to the Wild Life Conservation Corps working in Alaska. These men keep track of bears. Every winter, during the hibernation season, they crawl into caves and paint the rear end of the bears a vivid color. This is so they can keep track of them and identify them. Being cautious men, the rear end of a bear is all they want to see of him when the creature is out of his cave and on the prowl.

Now, suppose you were the wife of one of these men and, at a meeting of the Ladies' Thursday Bridge Club, you were called upon to give a little talk on your husband's vocation. You would, if you were the right kind of wife, get right up and say, "I wish to state, with pardonable pride I'm sure, that my husband paints bears' rear ends."

I have just learned that there is a St. Louis local of the Skunk Skin Scrapers Union-AFL-CIO. These men undoubtedly have wives, too. I have no doubt that they are proud men who chose their profession, in all probability, against the wishes of their parents. I can just imagine what they went through as boys. When someone asked them what they were going to be when they grew up, their fathers chimed in and said they were going to be lawyers and maybe become secretary of state someday, but they threw themselves on the floor, bumped their heads and cried, "I am not! I'm going to be a skunk skin scraper!" Such determination and courage would arouse the admiration of any right-minded woman.

The same is true of the members of the California Union, Worm, Cockroach, Rodent & Bird Workers Union - AFL-CIO which is affiliated with the Animal Trainers & Handlers Union, and, if you think I make up these things, get yourself an official union membership list. This is a hard vocation to say, but I'll bet the wives of these men can rattle it off in no time, their bosoms heaving with understandable pride.

I can't see that you have much of a problem, Madam.

The Once Over

Trend to pint-size autos, while not yet alarming, has auto industry weighing possibility of a swing to them in the next five years. All evidence to date shows that Americans go for big, beautiful and bedazzling cars.

But traffic jams, parking headaches and growing concern over family budgets can change their ideas. It won't be easy, Keeping Up With the Jones' routine has filled Mr. and Mrs. America with deadly fear of losing face by appearing in a less breath-taking model than a neighbor. Women have been largely responsible, the flashiest cars in sales window bringing their cries of "Buy me that. It will show up the Krautmeyers."

Husbands have made little resistance. They, too, liked the "chestiness" that goes with a superdooper wagon with cheesecake and all the extra gadgets.

In old days Mr. Smith felt no shame if he drove around town in an old buggy pulled by a spavined nag while rich Mr. Brown sailed by in a smart carriage with a span of high-steppers. But the auto changed all that. Even on trips through bankruptcy Smith drives the smartest and latest model and toots for Brown to move over. Terrific parking difficulties, rising car costs, and heavy taxes are making Smith and Brown do some thinking. Detroit concedes, as it carefully watches the trend and gets ready for smaller cars around 1960 to 1965. Parking the big ones takes blood, sweat and tears.

The Squawk Chute: Isn't it about time Hollywood, either on its own or on orders from its czar, imposed a three-hundred limit and declared a few months per year closed season gigolo hunting on the part of movie queens who pretty much set the pattern for living for millions of Americans? Many years ago, before movies had anything like the following they have today movie celebrities were barred from pictures for acts detrimental to the public interest. But today anything goes, including basic routines leading up to child neglect and murder. I just read predictions by a prominent producer that the popularity of the latest actress to be involved in an extra sordid story will be a bigger attraction than ever. Mrs. K.T.T. Answer: Don't date yourself. Standards have reached a stage where a half dozen husbands, a rep for quickie divorces and a name in the world of loose romantic episodes don't even bring a frown from Hollywood supervisory officials, or hurt the box office.

Robert S. Allen Reports...

76,000,000 Can Be Wrong

Washington — Seventy-six million Americans can be wrong!

That is the huge number under the age of 40, the group susceptible to dread polio, who have not yet availed themselves of full Salk vaccine protection.

Of this startling total, more than half, 46,000,000 have had no anti-polio serum at all. Largely included among them is one out of every four youths under 20, the age bracket most susceptible to polio.

The other 30,000,000 negligents have received one or two Salk shots of the three required for full immunization. These disturbing statistics are particularly important at this time because of the imminence of the polio season. In some sections of the country it has already started, with instances of death and paralysis being reported by medical authorities.

This significant fact was stressed by Surgeon General Leroy Burney at a meeting with the Appropriations Subcommittee headed by Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.). Dr. Burney discussed an exceptional survey that is soon to be published on the state of the nation's health.

Other highlights of this U. S. Public Health study are: 17,000,000 Americans are afflicted with some type of "chronic illness." Of this tragic number, approximately 4,000,000 are virtually incapacitated. Said Dr. Burney, "The worker cannot work; the housewife cannot take care of her family and home; and the child cannot go to school."

Needless Risks—Citing the "astounding success story" of Salk vaccine, the U. S. Public Health chief expressed bewilderment at the widespread indifference toward this readily available and safe serum.

"It is difficult to understand why so many people fail to take advantage of this tremendous medical achievement," said Dr. Burney, "especially in the light of the thrilling record of Salk vaccine. Our survey graphically shows the great progress that has been made in combating poliomyelitis through this serum. "Between 1956 and 1957, the total number of cases dropped from 15,000 to 6,000, a reduction of 60 per cent. There was an even sharper decline in the number of cases of paralytic polio, from around 8,000 in 1956 to approximately 2,000 in 1957, a drop of 75 per cent. This magnificent record is primarily due to Salk vaccine. Yet despite that, 76 million people in the U. S. under 40 are still not fully protected."

"Every one of them is taking chances he or she may regret," pointed out Senator Hill. "I learned that lesson painfully once. I had typhoid fever because I didn't take vaccine which my father prescribed for me. He was a doctor and told me to take this vaccine. Instead, I put it on the mantel and forgot it. The result was I had typhoid fever."

"What is especially shocking," continued Dr. Burney, "is our survey disclosed that, one out of every four youths under 20 has not received a single injection of Salk serum. This is the most susceptible group of all to polio, yet 25 percent are disregarding the safe and easily accessible means to get immunization from this highly dangerous disease."

"Too many of them are putting their Salk vaccine on the mantel," said Hill. "I hope they don't have the same unhappy experience I did because of that."

Research Slush — Senator Hill's Committee is restoring $1,000,000 in medical research funds slashed by the Budget Bureau.

This money was cut from the $7,200,000 budget of the Communicable Disease Center of the world-famed National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md. The axed $1,000,000 involves promising research to determine the cause of deadly "staphylococcus" which is giving hospitals throughout the country so much difficulty.

The committee uncovered this secret budget bureau knife-wielding during a discussion with Dr. Robert Anderson, head of the Communicable Disease Center.

"Surgeon General Burney told us about this staphylococcus problem," said Senator Hill. "He said it is springing up in hospitals all over the nation." "It is indeed," replied Dr. Anderson. "Virtually every section of the country has been hit by this infection. In some areas, it is becoming acute. All possible research should be pressed in this field to ascertain the cause of this virulent infection. It is obvious, it can occur in any hospital. Our findings indicate that surgical patients are particularly affected."

"Have you any idea why the Budget Bureau refused to give this very necessary money?" asked Hill.

"We do not," said Dr. Anderson. "All we were informed was that our budget had been reduced by $1,000,000 from the $7,200,000 we requested. I should point out this money was sought for other important research. In addition to that on staphylococcus. For example: Scientists at the Center are working to adopt a fluorescent antibody technique to many of the communicable diseases. This is the most exciting thing in the control of such diseases that we are doing research on."

"In the control of infections and communicable disease, the detection of the offending organism is essential first to cure the disease. By using the fluorescent antibody technique, many communicable diseases can be detected in one to three hours. Present techniques require at least three days to do that. But under the new technique, the infectious disease organism that causes rheumatic and bronchial pneumonia can now be identified in a matter of several hours. As you can readily see, that can make all the difference in the world; between life and death."

Senator Hill's answer to this information was immediate and emphatic.

"This committee will give you all the funds you need for this kind of research," declared the Alabama. "We will give you the $1,000,000 the Budget Bureau took away from you so incomprehensibly. And that isn't all. If there are any other slashes by the Budget Bureau in your research funds, you let us know about it and we'll take care of the matter, as we are doing in this instance."

Jim Riley Says:

Guard Against Forest Fires

This is the time of year that we must all exercise the greatest caution possible while outdoors.

The snows and rains of last month wetted down our woods for a time, but they are now in "forest fire" condition. True, it rained Monday night—but it's still forest fire time.

It doesn't seem possible, especially after all the snow and heavy rains of March, that we could be confronted with a forest fire threat at this date.

But, as has been proven down through the years, the woods can be wet with rain one day and burning the next.

Without our forest lands we would be just another dot on the map. Mountains without forests aren't much of an attraction for the average vacationer.

Remember those mammoth flames that have swept over Big Pocono, Pocono Lake, Pocono Summit, portions of Pocono Manor and areas of Long Pond in past years?

The scars of these fires are still visible.

Let's not have any fresh scars—we may regret it more than in the past.

George Sokolsky Says...

Freedom Of Decision

Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson said in an address recently:

"In our free enterprise system, the source of economic power lies in the freedom of both producers and consumers to make their own decisions—decisions on markets, decisions on new products, decisions on spending versus saving, decisions on what the course of the economy may be in the future. It is these decisions—the millions of them which are made every day—which determine whether the wheels of our economy will turn at a faster or slower rate."

This is a very well-written statement of the rights of the individual in the capitalist system, but it is not true in the United States or anywhere else in the year 1958. In the first place, the income tax, not only the enormous share that it takes of each person's earnings but the brutal method of collection, reduces the individual's right of decision to a greater or lesser degree, depending upon his earnings and the nature of his business.

Furthermore, the government's manipulation of the value of money and of prices by subsidies and supports and other gimmicks further reduces the individual's authority over his own earnings. Money is an exchange for services and goods and is a measure which, when constant, permits planning. When the value of money becomes inconstant and prices fluctuate upward, a share of each individual's earnings disappears into nothingness.

What Is Reasonable? The Secretary of the Treasury ought to explain what he means to do about that when he describes the rights of decision on the part of free men. Men are only fully free when no one is manipulating their earnings by destroying values.

The head of a family is avoiding postwar expenditures at this moment because he feels that the market is outpriced and that prices must come down to a reasonable level? It is a figure which the consumer can afford to pay without suspecting that he is being robbed.

Economics are not hard to understand. The professional economists and professors, who are usually small earners, have developed a jargon and systems which sound terrific; but the peddler of oranges knows that if he can sell an orange for more than it costs him plus time and overhead, he earns a living; if he has to sell for less, he goes broke.

This is the essence of the problem. Such a fellow also understands that if the customers are not working, they cannot buy the way they do when they are working.

He also understands that people believe that they can get along without oranges but when in the United States, they sell their later model cars for older cars, they are close to broke. Nobody needs to go to school to learn that much.

Therefore, when the President says, "Buy!" but that he will not cut taxes, he is speaking against a vast knowledge fore us. The warmth of the air does a great deal to dry out forests and make them ripe for burning.

The snows and rains of last month wetted down our woods for a time, but they are now in "forest fire" condition.

At least eight forest fires have been reported thus far and I'm sorry to relate that at least two were suspicious enough to force an investigation.

I can't imagine anyone low enough to purposely set a fire in our woods. It just doesn't seem that a human could sink to such depths.

Our woods and mountains are what make the Poconos one of the greatest vacation lands and beauty spots in the world.

Without our forest lands we would be just another dot on the map. Mountains without forests aren't much of an attraction for the average vacationer.

The Shortway and the Thruway, coupled with new super highways in adjoining states, make our tourist attraction even more important than at anytime in our history.

We must do our share in an effort to stamp out forest fires. We must exercise all caution and we must also do all in our power in an effort to report and convict those people with a mad desire to see things burn.

Plenty Of Space In This Model

SO YOU want plenty of space but feel you cannot afford the luxury of a large lot. Here's your answer. A two-story home with an impressive traditional styling.

There's more to this design than plenty of floor area. It is also realistic. Its distinction is in honest use of building materials. It was designed for the family that likes the look of tradition and modern living comfort.

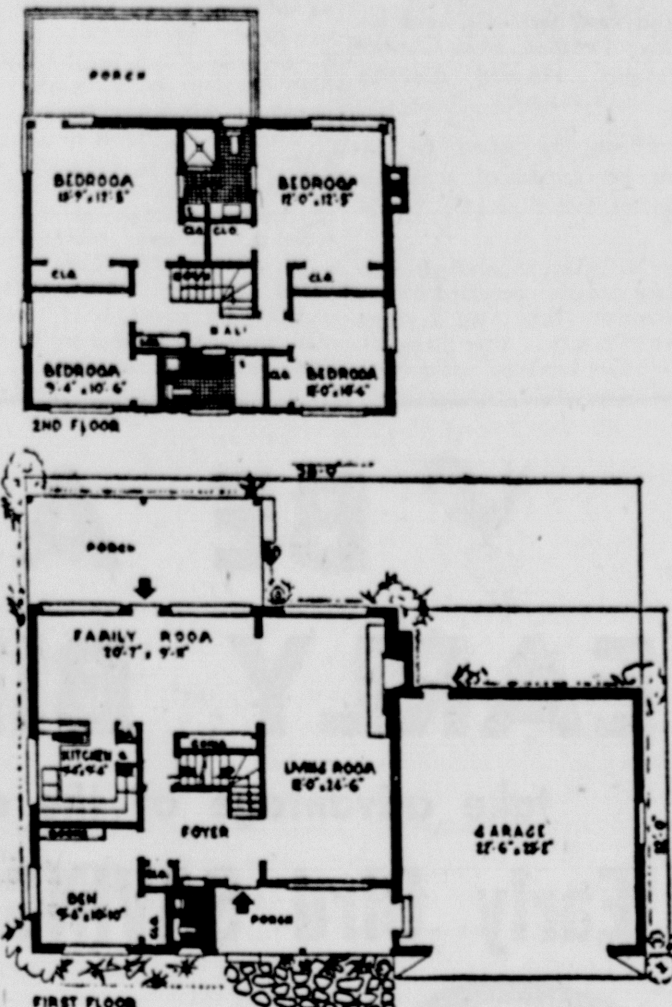

Pivot point of the downstairs daytime living area is a room-size foyer. With the exception of the kitchen, every room and the second level stairway can be reached directly from the front door.

Benefiting most from this desirable room arrangement is the living room. Especially generous in size, this room extends from front to back. A mammoth fireplace dominates one end of the room suggesting furniture grouping near this point.

Monopolize

The family room and living room combine to clearly monopolize the downstairs living area. Together, they offer 500 square feet of floor area with an abundance of windows—supposedly full-size apartments often have less.

Although centrally located, the kitchen virtually turns its back on the front of the home and favors only the family room. The object here is to provide an abundance of counter and cabinet space—two items all homemakers agree cannot be over-emphasized.

The master of the house will like the location of his den or extra room in a pinch.

So you like plenty of closet space? Look at that upstairs. Almost a hundred square feet of area has been devoted to this purpose. Not only do the bedrooms have the conventional closets, two have walk-in wardrobe closets.

Two full-size lavatories on each side of the upstairs eliminates traffic congestions during those inevitable early morning rush hours.

This plan conforms to general FHA, VA and Building Code requirements. Electrical layout is indicated on the blue prints. The plan contains 998 square feet, 25,977 cubic feet and 580 square feet for the garage. Your builder or material supplier can give you the average cost per square or cubic foot in your area.

"Complete Building Plan, including Detail Sheet, Material List and Specifications Guide for Design No. H-517 may be purchased for $9.75. For three additional sets add $25. Right Way Secret To Painting

PAINTING IS easy, if you go at it in the right way. The first step is proper preparation. Be sure you have on hand all the necessary materials.

You'll need: Sufficient paint to finish the job at one session, good quality brushes, plenty of newspaper and masking tape (painter's drop cloths really are better) and thinner.

Don't forget to wear old clothes. Either gloves or protective cream on your hands will make the washing-up easier.

If the job involves plaster walls, have some spackle and a flexible putty knife on hand. Move the furniture out of the room or pile it all in the center and cover with a drop cloth.

Check that both your brushes and the surfaces to be painted are clean. Grease and soot on the wall will prevent paint from binding to the old surface properly and eventually cause peeling and alligatoring.

Use Quality Paints

Use good quality materials. There is no doubt that in the long run you will save money and get a lot more satisfaction by using the best available paints and brushes.

While professionals favor the five inch wall brush, the amateur will find it more convenient to use one that is three to four inches wide. You'll need a one and one-half or two inch varnish brush for trim.

After you have covered the floor and furniture with drop cloths or newspapers and removed switch and outlet plates, you are ready to begin. The best practice for the do-it-yourselfer is to paint the walls first and then do the trim.

If you are right-handed work from left to right around the room... reverse this if you're a southpaw. Always work from top to bottom.

In doing the walls, paint in strips about three feet wide. Paint rapidly with bold strokes so that one strip will not set before you start the next. Remember to always brush back into the work already done.

Add Beauty

Stippling is easy and adds immeasurably to the beauty of walls done in flat oil paints. Best way to do it is to use a roller stipple. As soon as you finish a strip with your brush, roll the stippler up and down it. Use a roller covered with carpet, not sheep wool.

Before doing the trim, mask the walls with newspaper and masking tape... or use the inexpensive tool known as the "painter's helper."

Of course, if the ceiling needs re-coating it should be done first of all. The easiest method is to stretch planks between two ladders so that your head is about four inches from the ceiling. You can then paint a full wall-to-wall strip without getting down.

Floors First On Notice List

ONE OF the first things that you notice when you enter a room is the floor. Which is one of many good reasons why you should give flooring an important place on your modernizing program.

Today there is a wide variety of attractive and long-wearing hard-surface floor covering materials on the market, most of which can be installed without professional help.

Included

Included are asphalt, linoleum, rubber, cork, vinyl and vinyl-asbestos tiles as well as vinyl, rubber and linoleum sheets.

Before you select your flooring, consider the size, shape, lighting and use of the room you are about to re-do.

In the case of a "pattern" floor, the key motif which is repeated again and again to create the over-all design should be chosen in relation to the size of the room. If yours is a small room, use only one or two colors. A "busy" design has a tendency to make a room look smaller. If a room is large, a bold design incorporating striking colors can be used successfully.

Whether your decorating theme is provincial or colorful, the design and colors you choose should be in keeping with the decor.

For living and dining areas, a one-color floor is usually the best choice. Your best bet in the kitchen and bathroom is a multi-color floor, which not only adds a cheerful note, but hides dirt and so reduces cleaning to a minimum.

Construction Saves Money On Additions

POST-AND-BEAM construction saves money on the addition of a room, porch, garage or carport to a house because it eliminates the cost of two by four supports and the labor of installing them.

In post-and-beam construction, the weight of the roof and walls is supported by beams held up by four by four or four by six posts. A further savings is achieved with economical truss roof construction.

Gabled Roof

This gabled roof can be roofed with asphalt shingles which are economical yet offer the advantages of color dependability, and long-lasting protection.

A gabled roof is preferred for additions to houses whose main roof is gabled. This avoids an "added-on" appearance.

Application On Shingles

ENOUGH asphalt shingles to roof approximately 40 homes—770 squares of roofing—were applied on the new Island Garden Arena, West Hempstead, L. I., N.Y.

A wind resistant application of asphalt shingles was used to roof the huge, quonset-shaped sports structure because Long Island is frequently subject to winds of gale force.

Hose Repairs Pipe

A TEMPORARY repair for a leaky pipe can be made by covering the leak with a piece of slit garden hose. Tighten the hose with a hose clamp.

Kitchen Improvements Turn Old Houses, Private Dreams Into Modern Dwellings

IF YOUR house is more than 17 years old—and nearly half of America's 26 million family-owned dwellings antedate World War II—chances are you have at least imagined the joys of modernizing your kitchen.

If so, you are right in step with the times, for modernization is an important trend in the United States right now—kitchen remodeling in particular. A survey conducted last year indicates that of all home-owners' planning improvements, one out of every five was planning kitchen modernization.

For successful kitchen planning, the preliminary step should be a conference of all members of the family to determine exactly what requirements the kitchen should fill.

Important Questions
Planning will be well along by the time you've asked yourselves such questions as: What are the complaints about the present layout? Should there be dining space in the kitchen? Does the whole family gather there frequently? And, is more than one person apt to be working and/or cooking at the same time?

Do we need an extra oven, sink, or more refrigeration space? Where should the washer and dryer go? Are there any structural bottlenecks, such as unnecessary partitions or pantries? Is entertaining an important factor in our family, so that service and clean-up should be made easier than it is now?

And so on and on, until you have a clear picture of how a well-planned new kitchen can harmonize with your family's way of life.

"Remodeling" is a term covering a broad range. Modern straightline, mix - or - match appliances are designed to stack and fit together in such a way that a custom-look kitchen is the result. In some cases, merely the installation of new cabinets and appliances will modernize a kitchen. From there, remodeling can range all the way up to a thorough re-building project that includes walls, floor and ceiling.

Features to Check

Whether your remodeling plan is modest or ambitious there are certain physical features which should be checked first, most importantly, the existing plumbing and wiring. Ancient piping may require replacement, and depending on such additions as dishwasher, disposal and automatic washer, you may require additional drain and plumbing lines.

In many old houses, wiring is outmoded and simply not adequate for today's requirements.

Walls which are badly cracked or damaged can be remedied with the use of an interior wall finish, such as wood paneling or wallboard. Similarly, pre-finished wood flooring or tiling can be laid over a deficient flooring.

Seal Tells Quality

THE FAMILIAR Seal of Approval of the American Wood Window Institute affixed to most windows of ponderosa pine guarantees that the window meets specifications of the U.S. Department of Commerce as published in the department's booklets on commercial standards.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

It would be a pleasant pattern to follow all year. Enough rain at night to make things grow, enough sun during the day to be pleasantly warm, and enough clouds to make you wonder whether it will last.

But being human, our sense of contentment wouldn't last even if the weather did. We'd want it hot enough to go swimming, cold enough for a fire in the fireplace, rainy enough to fill the ponds to the brim or something.

But after a winter like this last one, we are, for the time being, content just to watch the grass grow, the magnolias unfold, and the forsythia making its own sunlight.

And fortunately, the social calendar has eased up enough to allow us to do just that. It's this fourth Tuesday and fifth week that permits this breathing space before the banquets of May are upon us.

But it rather spoils the Spring time air to have it filled with the scent of moth deterrent we're spraying on the winter woollens hung on the line to air. And it spoils the feeling of Spring lassitude to have the sunshine showing up so clearly the dust and rain-droop runnels on the windowpanes.

The bees and the birds are not the only wild life—there are tiny moths like moths in the sunlight, there are wasps busy with the big construction job of making mud tunnels on the back porch, there are ants leading their miniature armies across the kitchen and up to the sugar bowl.

Maybe, we'd be content just to be if we found a sunny place out of the wind and kept our eyes closed to the work to be done. But no, I tried that, and do you know you can hear the grass growing?

At the meeting of the Stroud Twp. Fire Co. Aux. held at the PP&L building on Phillips St., there was a showing of hats modelled by the members. Judged the prettiest were those by Mrs. Clyde White and Mrs. John Parker; the funniest, Mrs. George Keenhold.

Plans were made for a supper to be served on May 3 at the Arlington Heights School sponsored by the Auxiliary.

If Salary Isn't Enough Find A Sideline Job

By Anne Heywood
Many of the most promising jobs in the most potentially lucrative fields begin with salaries that are quite low.

In advertising, publishing, fashion and decorating, the beginning salaries tend to be far less than they are in many commercial jobs. All too often the young person who wants to succeed in these fields is driven out of them by the mere fact that there isn't enough salary in the beginning to live on.

Supplement Salary
The problem, therefore, it seems to me, becomes one of supplementing this starting salary with outside jobs that increase the over-all income without exhausting you too much. Fortunately, it is usually the very young who are in this position and the very young are apt to have energy to burn.

Recently I heard of two young people, in similar situations, who have worked out interesting sideline activities. These jobs are not usually highly lucrative in their own right. But the fact is that they not only bring in a little extra income, but they also fill evening and weekend hours which might otherwise offer temptations for spending money.

Must Be Different

The important thing, I think, is to be sure that the sideline job is different—quite different—from the bread-and-butter job so that it really gives you a change of pace, atmosphere and people.

Both of these girls are secretaries. One works for a television station and one for an advertising agency.

The television girl is at the reception desk and works with all kinds of people, many of them highly geared, all day long. She gets almost no chance to use her secretarial skills except for helping out on an occasional deadline.

She put an ad in her local paper and lined up a very interesting job with a doctor who

Students Discuss Code For Teenagers At Stroud PTA; Officers Elected

Mrs. Robert Hellmann was elected president of the Stroud Union High School Parent-Teachers Assn. at the meeting on Monday night at the high school. Other officers elected were: Mrs. James Kitson, vice president; Mrs. Russell Pritchard, secretary; Raymond Serfass, treasurer.

The new president and vice president will attend the district conference to be held in Pottsville on May 24.

The program featured a discussion of "A Teen-age Code" by a panel of four students with Samuel Wells, III, introducing the panel: Joan Hester, a junior; Barbara LeBar, a senior; Noel Campbell, junior and vice president of the student council; and Byron Weaver, a senior member of the student council.

Each member discussed a portion of a "Code for Teenagers" set up in Minnesota, Westchester and several other cities.

As a result of their discussion, they agreed that it might be possible to work out a code if the entire student body were allowed to give suggestions on all the points, and be given a vote on the final analysis. Such a code should be started in Junior high school, they felt.

Other opinions and suggestions brought out in the talks included:

Joan Hester: Parents should

Ten Commandments For Teenagers

1. Stop and think before you drink.
2. Don't let your parents down; they brought you up.
3. Be humble enough to obey; you will be giving orders yourself some day.
4. At the first moment turn away from unclean thinking.
5. Don't show off when driving; if you want to race, go to Indianapolis.
6. Choose a date who would make a good mate.
7. Go to church faithfully; the Creator gives us a week; give Him back an hour.
8. Avoid following the crowd; be an engine not a caboose.
9. Choose your companions carefully; you are what they are.
10. Or even Better, keep the original Ten Commandments.

a special time for homework in the student's own room and not permit television until the work is completed. They should give students a liveable allowance, and if possible include not only spending money but clothing allowance as well.

Barbara LeBar: Home should be the center for social activities. Parents should be home when their children are entertaining, but should allow them a certain amount of privacy. Students and parents should agree on a time for getting home, and parents should try to arrange transportation so that students get home at a good time. For Junior High students group dating rather than individual "ones" should be the rule.

Noel Campbell: Hours when students should be home should vary with the occasion with later hours at weekends than during school nights. Although the opinion about smoking is divided about 50-50, athletes are not permitted to smoke and there is a state law which prohibits the sale of cigarettes to minors.

Byron Weaver: The student should be permitted the use of a car, but should also assume the responsibility for that car. Students taking the driver training course are entitled to lower rate of insurance than if they haven't.

Drinking should be definitely taboo for Junior High students, and high school drinking reflects unfavorably on the student and on the home.

Refreshments were served after the meeting with Mrs. George Mackey as hostess chairman, assisted by Martha Simons and Lynne Mackey.

Sadie Hawkins Dance Held At Dingmans

Dingmans Ferry — More than 100 persons, in a variety of costumes, made the Riverview Tavern in Dingmans Ferry look like an over-crowded "Dogpatch Holler" last Saturday night. The occasion was the postponed Sadie Hawkins' Dance given by the Ladies' Auxiliary for the benefit of the Delaware Township Volunteer Fire Company and among those present were visitors from Milford, Matamoras, Bushkill, Stroudsburg and New Jersey.

The costume judges were Mrs. Leonard Mattar, Victor Orben and Walter All of Milford. They awarded the prize for the best "Daisy Mae" to Mrs. Lucien Locke and decided the best "Lil Abner" was James Albright. Their prizes were a handmade Daisy Mae apron and hand-painted "Dogpatch" stoneware jug from which Mr. Albright sold $1.50 worth of drinks before the crowd caught on that they were paying 25 cents for a drink of good old Dingmans Ferry water.

Honorable mention was given to Mrs. Caleb Lantz for her portrayal of Mammy Yokum and the Pappy Yokum award went to James Freytag of Matamoras. Their prizes were a corn-cob pipe, with original verse, for Mammy and a big Daisy Mae cake for Freytag. No prizewinner, but a particularly fetching sight, was the character of Daisy Mae as portrayed by "Wendy" Wentworth.

Other prize winners were Joyce Reser and Billy Hotalen; John Edroney; Ginny and Harold Hodges and Miss Marilla VanAuken.

A special feature of the evening was the auctioning of a huge Lil Abner and Daisy Mae cake. Bidding, which was fast and furious, finally narrowed down to two contenders, Frank Fessler of Dingmans Ferry and Russell Echback, Pike County Commissioner from Bushkill. When they each had bid $5, they decided to call it a draw, and then gave the cake back to the Auxiliary to sell individual slices at 10 cents apiece from which they realized an additional $5 for the fire company.

Music was provided by the Dingmans Ferry Players—Louise and Charlie Snyder, Gladys Sebring, John Kloezer and Mrs. Charters Raney of Bushkill. Oscar Moureaux of Milford did the calling.

It's difficult to settle down to a typewriter after so long away—particularly when the sky is excitingly blue, and the bushes are brilliant green, heavy with buds about to burst at the seams. It's difficult to think about merchandise and price tags, when your heart and mind are filled with a thousand things as brilliant as butterfly wings and just as hard to pin down. But here I am—and there's an office window between me and the world outside.

Mid-Spring is a strange time to be away from one's job—or to be shut up in bed. Because so much is happening then—and when you emerge from your private shell, it's like stepping from behind the walls of a convent after a long period of soul-searching, or awakening, Rip Van Winkle-ish, after a twenty year slumber.

You go into "exile" wearing a winter coat—and one fine day you realize that when you return you just must have the Spring coat that was back on will call. You hang winter clothes into your closet as you slip into your nightgown—and suddenly you find you've nothing at all to wear when you dress again. You rip frantically through all the drawers and find a few skirts that were retired when you changed size—and you discover you can wear them if only you invest in a few 2.98 blouses. Then you think heaven that we do have such beautiful blouses for that price at Wyckoff's... both upstairs in Carrie Rusk's department, and downstairs in Beag Gorg's budget blouse department.

Hurdles and headaches!—life is full of them. And even such a wonderful season as Spring is responsible for its share.

Since writing my last column, I have killed the first fly and mosquito of the season—and have supervised the washing of my windows which are now so clean I'm never quite sure whether they're opened or closed until I check. Regardless of the work that goes into house-cleaning every day of the year, it is amazing the amount of dust, dirt and lint that can be routed by a vigorous onslaught. If cleanliness is next to Godliness there are, I'll wager, any number of homemakers right now willing to believe that their families have been heathen all year.

Remember WYCKOFF'S when you do your Spring cleaning and re-decorating. Think of the mops, brushes, cleaning fluid, shampoos, and waxes that lighten the job—and when you're cleaning out the closets think of WYCKOFF'S for storing those precious furs and woolens.

A moth is such sneaky thing
There's nothing that can beat it...
If you've a "something" that you prize
The pesky moth will eat it.
WYCKOFF'S will solve your woes for you...
Just call our store. Do try it—
We'll store those precious furs and such
And put moths on a diet.

Tannersville 4-H Club Holds Showing Of Soil Testing As Organization Project

TANNERSVILLE—The Tannersville 4-H Club held a demonstration meeting Monday night. The program included a soil testing demonstration conducted by Bob Stauffer, assistant county agent.

Each member was shown an accurate method of obtaining soil samples.

It was pointed out by Stauffer that "arm, lawn and garden soil should be tested regularly. The best reason for testing is because lime is the most basic essential to good soil fertility.

Each crop has a certain range of acidity for proper growth and development. If this level is not obtained, yield will suffer. Also, if the pH (lime level) is too low, some of the fertilizer which is added to the soil will not be available to the plants."

A total of 15 samples were tested. Only three of these samples required no lime for maximum plant efficiency.

Another testing demonstration will be held at the Gilbert Community Hall tomorrow night for the benefit of the members of the West End 4-H Club.

Columbia University Official To Visit In Monroe County

JOHN M. MULLINS, director of the Budget at Columbia University, will visit high schools in Monroe County tomorrow.

He will talk with principals, guidance counselors and students of Stroudsburg High School and East Stroudsburg Senior High School, explaining the program and standards of admission of Columbia College, the men's undergraduate liberal arts school of Columbia University.

Mullins' visit to Stroudsburg is one of many such tours made by Columbia administrative and faculty heads throughout the year to acquaint promising students of high school age in all parts of the country with the facilities offered by Columbia College.

Founding

The College, now in its 204th academic year, was founded in 1754 as King's College by royal charter of King George II of Great Britain.

It is from the College, with a student body of about 2,400 undergraduates, that the University draws its football, basketball and other athletic teams. The college undergraduates are housed at their own famous Van Am Quadrangle, "The Quad," but have full access to all the facilities of the University.

Meeting Postponed

A MEETING of the Monroe County Gas Dealers Assn., scheduled for Thursday night, has been postponed until May 1 at 8 p.m. in the American Legion Home, East Stroudsburg.
